36. Supermarket – sell-by dates

Read dates. Understand date formats.

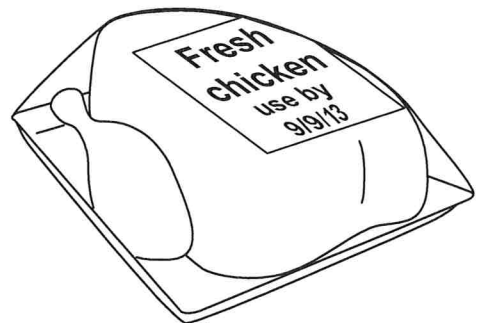

The date can be written in several different ways, combining numbers and words or just using numbers. For example, the 20th of April 2014 can also be written as:

20/04/14, 20 April 2014 or 20 Apr 14.

The months of the year are sometimes written in a short form, or abbreviation. This may be written as letters or numbers. This table shows you how the months can be abbreviated.

January	Jan. 01	May	May 05	September	Sept. 09
February	Feb. 02	June	June 06	October	Oct. 10
March	Mar. 03	July	July 07	November	Nov. 11
April	Apr. 04	August	Aug 08	December	Dec. 12

Look at these foods then answer the questions as if today's date is 9 September 2013.

1. Which foods have to be used before the end of today?
2. Which foods should be thrown away?
3. Which food has the longest time before its date runs out?
4. How many months are left before you should use the tea bags?
5. How many days are left before you should use the milk?
